

WORKING & LEARNING

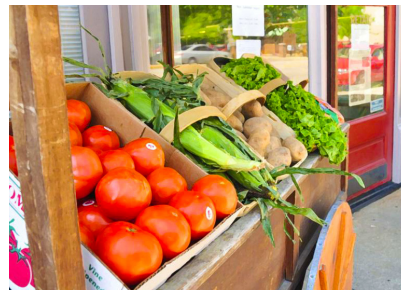

Southeastern Indiana's skilled, dedicated workforce, advanced manufacturing expertise, and reputation for competitive labor costs and productivity make us attractive to employers. Hanover College and Ivy Tech Community College offer continuing education and customized job training, while several grant funded programs deliver the importance of 21st century skills to middle and high school students. Networking groups such as the Young Adult Professionals organization keep managers connected with everything the area has to offer.

LIVING

Imagine streets of quaint homes along wooded hills, perched above the majestic Ohio River. That's exactly what you'll find in Madison and Jefferson County, Indiana. We offer affordable housing, excellent schools, top-quality health-care, challenging golf courses, recreational opportunities, and more – all at a very low cost of living, and close to Louisville, Cincinnati, and Indianapolis!

BUSINESS-FRIENDLY

There's a strong appreciation for business and free enterprise here. You'll find extensive cooperation and collaboration between local companies. By working closely together and partnering on projects, local managers are able to leverage the strengths of other companies. Combine that with the pro-business climate and an affordable workforce that values productivity and it's easy to see how we help companies succeed.

GREAT SITES

We have several prime sites ready for your company's needs, including shovel-ready sites that offer faster permitting and development. The Economic Development Partners can also provide access to a variety of local incentives and connect you with the state's generous economic development programs. Indiana's business-friendly tax system, financial stability, cooperative government agencies, low local taxes, and reliable, low-cost utilities enhance profitability.

GETTING AROUND

We're centrally located and close to everywhere you want to be. We're just a short trip to Louisville, Cincinnati and Indianapolis, and just minutes from Interstate 65, and close to Interstate 71. We're also served by U.S. 421, and Indiana highways 7, 56 and 62, so you can get anywhere in the region quickly. We also have excellent railroad service, an airport large enough to serve business jets, and shipping opportunities on the Ohio River.
